

International Daily

WWW.thekabultimes.gov.af

● Farid Ahmad Farhang, Director of Govt. Dailies
Mob. 0704008080

● Editor-in-Chief, Hamidullah Arefi
Mob. 0700163568, 020-230.1766

● E-mail, Hamidullah_arefi@yahoo.com
Mob. 0707005865

● Deputy Editor-in-Chief, Fathulbari Akhtar
Mob. 0707005865

● Graphic designers, Edris Akbar, Rakhsh Shaibani and Ali Ahmad
● Distribution: 2505337 - 079551913 - 078245600 - 0766788447

● Printed at: Anadi printing press

● Address: 2nd Floor, Liberty Printing Press Building
2nd Microrayan, Kabul, Afghanistan

● Twitter.com/thekabultimes

● www.facebook.com/thekabultimes

Editorial

World shouldn't watch Taliban's human rights violations

In the areas under their control, besides destruction of public utility installations, Taliban militants have enforced hard laws and resorted to such actions which are frankly violation of human rights. One of these anti human rights actions which is commonly committed by Taliban unscrupulous militants is kangaroo courts, murder and execution of civilians.

Based on information of Afghan security sources, Taliban militants, have taken out over one hundred civilians from their homes only in Spin Boldak district, Kandahar province and executed them. Addressing a press conference in Kabul on Monday spokesmen of ANDSF, Omar Shamsary said, following execution of Spin Boldak, the Taliban militants captured 400 civilians and out of that executed 100 people. Taliban also committed similar crimes in other districts of Kandahar province.

Recently a video was displayed by social media that showed that Taliban armed men arrested Nizam Mohammad known as "Khasha Jawan", a prominent comedian in Dand district, torturing and then mercilessly murdered him. Taliban armed men continue inhuman crimes in other areas under their control. Numerous reports have been published from northern provinces of Afghanistan that indicate Taliban atrocities and anti-Islamic approach with local people.

In the areas under their domination, Taliban's approach with people are like their slaves. Other Taliban crimes include kangaroo court, cutting of body limbs, compulsory education, compulsory marriage with women and girls, torture and mutilating of people. Taliban inhuman activities in certain districts indicate that their militants have open hand in murder, plundering, torturing and displacing the people and current crimes with no concern on prosecution, take video from their crimes and released them.

Now it is upon domestic and external human rights watchdogs to break their silence and strongly protest and condemn the crimes committed by Taliban against the Afghan people.

Wherever an inhuman action is committed in a developed country, strong and vast protests are held. For instance, murder of a US black citizen George Floyd by an American police officer, shocked the American society from the bottom to the top and caused extensive demonstrations not only inside the US but in many other territories.

While everyday crimes of crimes against humanity and worse than George Floyd murder are taking place by Taliban in different parts of Afghanistan no one slightly reacts as if Afghanistan is not a member of the world community, and its people are living in another planet.

Now, it is necessary to document Taliban's inhuman crimes, handed over to international responsible bodies. Afghan media and human rights watches should never ignore Taliban's inhuman activities simply, should divulge their crimes and inhuman actions and the essence and nature of this criminal faction should be screened to the world people. Those countries and superpowers who have reached understanding with Taliban and gave prestige and political reputation to them, must be accountable for their actions and unforgivable mistakes.

The leaders and representatives of those countries who are involved in Afghan war and peace, must be accountable to their people and relevant human rights bodies, they should response to this question why and how they have compromised with mercenary Taliban, a proxy army of a certain regional country and their inhuman actions are frankly.

Annual subscription fee of The Kabul Times

For government organizations and individuals: 4000 Afs

For six months: 2000 Afs

For foreign organizations and diplomatic missions: 8000 Afs

For six months: 4000 Afs

For domestic commercial organizations: 6000 Afs

For six months: 3000 Afs

For students: 3000 Afs

For six months half price

Address: Second Microrayan, Azadi Printing Press Building, second floor.

Contact No: 02023301675-0700163568

Dr. Anil Kumar

He is withdrawal of United States from Afghanistan has an democracy in and around Afghanistan

and will, the decade long war in Afghanistan will come to an end

on September 11, 2021. The decision came under severe criticism in the region for numerous first, it would create massive power vacuum in the world's most unstable region.

Second, Afghanistan's security to protect its people, democratic values, and institutions. In the previous two decades, Afghanistan has experienced unprecedented levels of security, liberty, and freedom, particularly for women.

The departure of NATO troops from Afghanistan revealed all advances, and owing to a lack of advanced military, technology, and fighting spirit among soldiers, the Taliban has taken over 80% of the country, murdering civilians and journalists and enforcing harsh Sharia laws. Women and children are the most vulnerable victims of this power conflict.

The last approach of the United States

On 27 July at 3 AM, the United States abandoned the Bagram Airfield. This resulted in losing to the Taliban, giving them once more confidence. The United States' withdrawal has shattered the trust of its allies including India and spontaneously benefiting China and Pakistan in Asian politics.

As the withdrawal process is 90 percent complete, the power of the Taliban has also grown exponentially. The United States has committed to defend its allies in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

Defending Afghanistan's Frontiers

Dr. Anil Kumar

He is withdrawal of United States from Afghanistan has an

democracy in and around Afghanistan

and will, the decade long war in Afghanistan will come to an end

on September 11, 2021. The decision came under severe criticism in the region for numerous first, it would create massive power vacuum in the world's most unstable region.

Second, Afghanistan's security to protect its people, democratic values, and institutions. In the previous two decades, Afghanistan has experienced unprecedented levels of security, liberty, and freedom, particularly for women.

The departure of NATO troops from Afghanistan revealed all advances, and owing to a lack of advanced military, technology, and fighting spirit among soldiers, the Taliban has taken over 80% of the country, murdering civilians and journalists and enforcing harsh Sharia laws. Women and children are the most vulnerable victims of this power conflict.

The last approach of the United States

On 27 July at 3 AM, the United States abandoned the Bagram Airfield. This resulted in losing to the Taliban, giving them once more confidence. The United States' withdrawal has shattered the trust of its allies including India and spontaneously benefiting China and Pakistan in Asian politics.

As the withdrawal process is 90 percent complete, the power of the Taliban has also grown exponentially. The United States has committed to defend its allies in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government armed "Pardazant" or "Mallak" security arrangements.

Although this withdrawal looks a blunder, but there is a chance that the US wished for China to get entangled in the region's politics. Due to the fear of spreading and settling over of Islamic extremism, China will not boast on Afghan soil, only to become further engulfed in the region's affairs. This region, as history has shown, is a very expensive effort and financially known as graveyard of empires. Don't forget that this region is only a sliver of the larger battle for the top spot in global affairs.

The Failure of India's Foreign Policy

For India, Afghanistan has been a foreign policy dilemma. India has been unable to assist either the Afghan government or fringe groups

relations with Taliban. With China's growing power in the region and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban, India has very little way over the scenario of the Afghan conflict.

The security of the region is under grave threat and the fight against terrorism will worsen in the coming years.

The Taliban-Pakistan-China alliance has the potential to be disastrous for India. India has failed to negotiate in the last 20 years, it is not a backup plan or a vision for the future in the absence of NATO troops in Afghanistan.

North Korea has a strong nuclear arsenal since 2002, the Taliban has gained much power in the region with Pakistan's support.

The NATO forces, through their presence in Afghanistan, had received success in securing the region and limiting the expansion of the Taliban. With the decision of withdrawal, India has a lot on the table to lose, the growing instability in Afghanistan indicates the short-sighted approach of the United States that withdrew forces without ensuring the violent spread of the Taliban and its repercussions for the region. Least to ask for the Afghan people, United States should have trained and equipped the Afghan government